Objectives and activities: This project was aimed to promote the active citizenship and training for a specific target of adults at risk of social exclusion due to intellectual disability. Starting from a comparison of the application of the ICF model (International Classification of Functioning) within 7 public and private institutions, the project aimed to develop and experiment new integrated and multi-dimensional tools and educational methods:

1. to produce and test a handbook and a training course module for teachers in order to implement targeted actions aimed at developing active citizenship for people with intellectual disability;
2. to develop and test a permanent on-line platform in order to get tools, collect, and compare data and research.
